

Mission Moment

Tarri Strickland
Director, Residence Life & Student Programs

Tarri is in her second year as Director of Residence Life and Student Programs here at CCSJ.

It has been a great pleasure to join the CCSJ Family as the first Residence Life Director. Building relationships with students and a shared sense of purpose has been my focus. My faith has guided me to see the importance of belonging and connectedness. I hold on to God to guide me in my work and this allows me to focus my advocacy for our students who I see much of myself in them as a first-generation college student.

It is exciting to see an organization with a mission rooted in the CPPS tradition of making a quality education accessible to all. I am committed to help achieve the goals of CCSJ. I have dedicated my time to making sure the College and its students continue to excel. I am a committed professional who believes in a holistic approach to educational services and programs.

I seek to live a life commitment to community development. Inspired by the saints' faith, perseverance and total commitment to the life of grace and seek to emulate their virtues is my role at CCSJ. My goal is to create a living learning environment that is inclusive and safe. Being a female of color and having had the charge to work with such a diverse student body is such a pleasure. I want our students to thrive. My goal has been to successfully maneuver a good balance in helping to serve the mission, while conceptualizing and developing meaningful initiatives.
